Citizens of most countries do not need a visa to enter Nicaragua for tourism purposes. However, there are a few exceptions, including:

- Citizens of Cuba, the Dominican Republic, and Haiti
- Citizens of countries that do not have diplomatic relations with Nicaragua

If you are a citizen of one of these countries, you will need to obtain a visa from a Nicaraguan embassy or consulate before you travel.

When you arrive in Nicaragua, you will need to present your passport and a completed immigration form. You will also be asked to pay a tourist card fee of US$10.

Upon departure, you will need to present your passport and tourist card to an immigration officer. You will also be asked to pay an exit fee of US$2.

The official currency of Nicaragua is the Nicaraguan córdoba (NIO). However, US dollars are widely accepted throughout the country.

The current exchange rate is approximately 35 córdobas to 1 US dollar.

Nicaragua has a tropical climate with two distinct seasons: a dry season and a rainy season. The dry season runs from November to April, while the rainy season runs from May to October.

During the dry season, the weather is generally hot and sunny. However, temperatures can drop at night, especially in the highlands.

During the rainy season, the weather is generally humid and overcast. However, there are often periods of sunshine, especially in the afternoon.

When packing for your trip to Nicaragua, be sure to include the following items:

- Light, breathable clothing
- A raincoat or umbrella
- Sunscreen
- Insect repellent
- A first-aid kit
- A flashlight
- A water bottle

You may also want to consider packing a light jacket or sweater for cooler evenings.

Nicaragua is generally a safe country to travel. However, as with any travel destination, it is important to take precautions to protect yourself from crime and illness.

Here are a few tips for staying safe and healthy in Nicaragua:

- Be aware of your surroundings and avoid walking alone at night.
- Do not carry large amounts of cash or valuables with you.
- Drink bottled water or boil tap water before drinking.
- Eat only cooked foods, and avoid eating raw fruits and vegetables that have not been peeled.
- Get vaccinated against typhoid fever and hepatitis A and B before you travel.

Nicaragua has a rich and diverse culture. Before you travel, it is important to learn about some of the local customs.

Here are a few things to keep in mind:

- It is considered rude to point at people or things.
- It is not customary to give gifts when visiting someone's home.
- It is important to be respectful of local laws and customs.
