Tommy's bike was old and rusty, but it was still his favorite thing in the world. He would ride it everywhere, from the jungle to the river to the mountains. But one day, Tommy's bike broke down. He was so sad! He didn't know what he was going to do.

Tommy's friends tried to help him fix his bike, but they couldn't. They told him that he needed to get a new bike.

Tommy didn't want a new bike. He loved his old bike. But he knew that he couldn't keep riding it if it was broken.

Tommy sighed and went to the bike shop. He looked at all the different bikes, but he didn't see any that he liked. They were all too big or too small or too expensive.

Tommy was about to give up when he saw a bike in the corner of the shop. It was a small, red bike with white tires. It was perfect!

Tommy asked the bike shop owner how much the bike cost. The bike shop owner told him that the bike was free. Tommy was so happy!

Tommy thanked the bike shop owner and rode his new bike out of the shop. He couldn't wait to show it to his friends.

Tommy's friends were so excited to see his new bike. They all wanted to ride it. Tommy let them take turns riding it, and they all had a lot of fun.

Tommy was so glad that he had found a new bike. He loved riding it even more than he loved riding his old bike.

One day, Tommy was riding his bike through the jungle when he saw a group of monkeys. The monkeys were playing on a tree branch, and they looked like they were having a lot of fun.

Tommy stopped his bike and watched the monkeys for a while. He wished that he could play with them, but he didn't know how to climb trees.

Just then, one of the monkeys jumped down from the tree branch and landed in front of Tommy. The monkey looked at Tommy and smiled.

"Hello," said the monkey. "My name is Mimi. Would you like to play with us?"

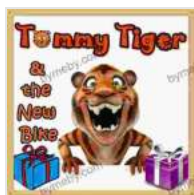

Tommy was surprised, but he nodded his head. "Yes," he said. "I would love to play with you."

Mimi led Tommy to the tree branch where the other monkeys were playing. Tommy climbed up the tree branch and started to play with the monkeys.

Tommy had so much fun playing with the monkeys. He climbed trees, swung on vines, and ate bananas. He even learned how to do a backflip!

When it was time to go home, Tommy said goodbye to the monkeys and promised to come back and play again soon.

Tommy rode his bike home, feeling happy and content. He had made new friends, had a lot of fun, and learned how to do a backflip. It had been a perfect day.
